

David Lelyveld is the author of Aligarh's First Generation: Muslim Solidarity in British India (1978, reprinted 2003) and co-editor of A Wilderness of Possibilities: Urdu Studies in Transnational Perspective (2005). His most recent publications deal with the social and political history of Urdu and its differentiation from Hindi. His current project is Sir Syed and Macaulay's Curse, a study of Sir Sayyid Ahmad Khan, Justice Sayyid Mahmud, and Sir Sayyid Ross Masood. He has held faculty and administrative positions at the University of Minnesota, Columbia and Cornell. He is now Professor of History at William Paterson University in New Jersey.