

Pasha Mohamad Khan is a PhD candidate at the Department of Middle Eastern, South Asian and African Studies at Columbia University, New York. His current research considers the fortunes of Indo-Persian and Urdu romances (qissahs) from the Mughal period to the beginning of the British imperial era.